HINTS FROM THE RADIO PROGRAM JUDGES

The audience can only hear you. (Gestures and facial expressions are of no value; so stress voice inflections.) Avoid background distractions such as crackling or shuffling papers, scraping chairs, or clearing throat. Make a presentation with a specific audience in mind (children, teens, adults). Practice until you are thoroughly familiar with your script before making a recording in order to avoid monotones and mechanical expression. Avoid long pauses or "dead time"; pronounce words clearly; don't mumble. Speak into the microphone at the appropriate distance to avoid crackling, distortion, or breathing sounds. Prepare your script carefully, giving attention to introduction, body and conclusion so the intended "message" is conveyed. Present your radio drama so that it comes alive for the listening audience.
